The morning sessions, for which there is a small enrollment fee, will begin at 9:30 and close at 1:15; these will include elemen-tary and advanced classes in religious pedagogy and teacher training, lectures on social service in the Sunday school and on the four gospels, and departmental classes (adult, senior, junior and pri-mary) on the teaching of missions in the Sunday school. Of special interest to the clergy are the conferences on educational, pastoral and personal problems, conducted every afternoon from 3 to 5 by the bishop of Erie; these are open to all the clergy, whether they are enrolled in the summer school or not. In addition to the popular and well-equipped educational leaders of this province who were on the teaching staff last year, the services of some of the best qualified leaders in missions, social service, Bible teaching and home religion in the church in the United States have been secured for lectures and confernces on these subjects.
